DID YOU KNOW?

The Peninsula Beijing is conducting a landmark transformation this year. Starting at 60 sq.m, the 230 new guest rooms will be amongst the largest in Beijing and will feature a separate bedroom, living area, dressing room and valet box, as well as customisable in room tablets that can be pre-set in 11 languages to control all functions at the touch of a fingertip.

The hotel has ten animal figurines on its rooftop, the same number that Emperor Qianlong had on his.

The Peninsula Beijing offers personalised helicopter tours, including exclusive aerial views of the Great Wall.

Huang Ting restaurant is adorned with antiques dating as far back as the Qing dynasty.

Yun Bar & Lounge is the only rooftop bar in the Wangfujing district. Its traditional roof design of the original structure built in 1987 is adorned with 5 mythical animal sculptures. The name 'Yun' derives from the Chinese word for 'cloud'.

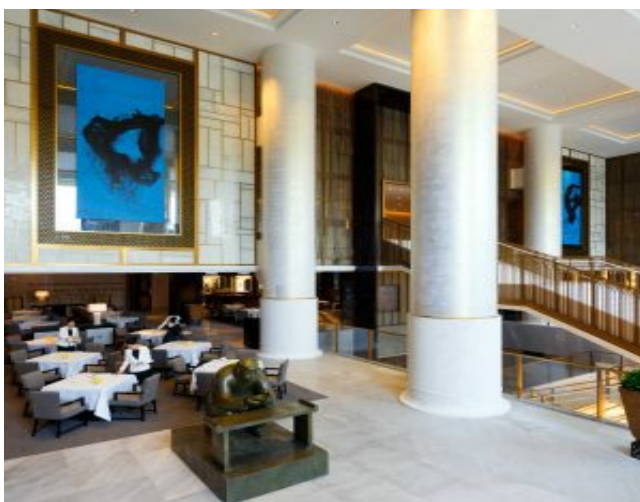

The Peninsula Suite is the largest suite in Beijing at over 600 sq.m. It has its own private lift from the lobby and a full satellite kitchen with a private entrance connecting it to the dining room. It houses an impressive collection of Chinese antiques and contemporary Asian art.

The Peninsula Academy offers a collection of bespoke programmes for all ages, providing unprecedented access to Beijing's rich historical, cultural and local lifestyle activities, such as bespoke tea ceremonies, a personal tai chi experience, the art of making dumplings and kites and rickshaw rides to the Hutong neighbourhood, as well as children's cooking courses.

The Club offers check-in and check-out service, unlimited pressing and a private lounge serving complimentary buffet breakfast, afternoon tea and evening cocktails. PenCities by LUXE City Guides showcases the very best of each Peninsula destination, with an exclusive and unique online luxury lifestyle journal spanning all ten Peninsula cities.

Established in 1866, The Hong Kong and Shanghai Hotels, Limited is the parent company of The Peninsula Hotels, which manages The Peninsula Beijing.
