KEY FACTS

The latest and only European property in The Peninsula Hotels collection, The Peninsula Paris is the renaissance of a modern day palace

Housed in an exquisitely restored 19th century French building in the heart of the elegant 16th arrondissement, it is just steps from the Arc de Triomphe and within walking distance of the city's most exclusive luxury shopping, dining and cultural attractions

Steeped in history, it sets new standards in luxury design and comfort, with spectacular skyline views. From the building façade to the interior, elements painstakingly introduced by local architects and artisan craftsmen, include fine marble, rich wood panelling and gold leaf finishing

Each room offers a taste of timeless and modern aesthetic, combining distinct Parisian influences with Peninsula signature functionality

Its collection of six eclectic restaurant and bar options bring a new dimension of dining to the City of Light

The award-winning Spa, offering tailored treatments by ESPA and Biologique Recherche, allows guests to refresh and revitalise body and mind in sumptuous surrounds.

The Peninsula Paris joins a prestigious group of Parisian hotels awarded the "Palace" distinction which it received in 2016. Bestowed by the French Tourism Development Agency, ATOUT France, the "Palace" status was created in November 2010 to reward hotel excellence and to assist in promoting the French way of life on the international stage

DID YOU KNOW?

The Peninsula Paris is located in a late 19th century Beaux Arts Haussmanian building, which first opened in 1908 as the Majestic Hotel, one of Paris' most luxurious "grands hotels". Most recently it was the International Conference Centre under the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs

The four-year renovation included 40,000 pieces of gold leaf, the removal, restoration and replacement of 1000 pieces of wood and 'fish scale' slate roof tiles fashioned by hand

The "Dancing Leaves" installation inside the entrance Lobby comprises 800 individual hand-blown crystal leaves by Lasvit

The aviation-themed interior of L'Oiseau Blanc restaurant features an immaculate 75% size replica of the bi-plane aces Charles Nungesser and François Coli attempted to cross the Atlantic with in 1927 from Le Bourget

The ornamental staircase was created by Schwartz & Meurer, who constructed the Eiffel Tower, while the L'Oiseau Blanc rooftop terraces were by Fonderie GHM, responsible for Paris' Art Nouveau-style Metro entrances

The two paintings on the ceiling of The Kléber Lounge - representing music and science and geography respectively - took 10 months to be restored by Cinzia Pasquali, who works at Versailles and the Louvre

The Paris Peace Accords, which ended the Vietnam War, were signed in the salon (now Bar Kléber) in 1973

In 1928, George Gershwin wrote 'An American in Paris' while staying at The Peninsula Paris. In May 1922 five of the greatest artists of the 20th century enjoyed dinner together; these included writers James Joyce and Marcel Proust, artist Pablo Picasso, choreographer Sergei Diaghilev & composer Igor Stravinsky

The customised car fleet includes a magnificent lovingly restored 1934 Rolls-Royce Phantom II, a Rolls-Royce EWB Phantom, two MINI Clubmans, 10 BMW 7 Series limousines and a classic Citroën 2CV fourgonnette, plus an underground car park

The Peninsula Academy takes guests behind the scenes at some of the French capital's most intriguing cultural gems and coveted landmarks
